“May 17, 1648, an agreement was made between Paupmunnuck, with the consent of his brother and all the rest of his associates, on the one part; and Capt. Miles Standish, of Plymouth, in behalf of the inhabitants of Barnstable, on the other part, viz: that the said Paupmunnuck, with his brother and associates, hath with their full consent, freely, fully, and absolutely sold unto the said Capt. M.S., all the land on the S. side, from the bounds of Marshpee, eastward, to Oyster River, in behalf and for the use of the inhabitants of Barnstable, all his and their rights and interest in all his and their lands, & facing upon the S. Sea, butting home to Lyano’s land eastward, and to Nepojetom’s and Seagumuck’s land Northward, excepting 30 acres retained for himself, his brother and associates: for and in consideration of 2 brass kettles and on bu. Of Indian corn, also one-half part of so much fence as will enclose 30 acres: and he and his associated shall have free liberty to hunt on the lands, provided they give notice to the said inhabitants before they set any traps, & carefully to watch all their traps every day – if not they shall pay all damages to any man’s cattle. In witness of all and singular of the premises thereof they have hereunto set their hands the day and year above written.”

“Difficulties haven arisen in regard to the bounds of the above grant and in the making of the fence, the Indians agreed with Henry Cobb and Isaac Robinson to free the town from making the fence and from the 1 bu. Of corn, and in consideration were to receive one great brass kettle seven spans in wideness round about, and one broad hoe; and as the bounds were not fully described, Paupmunnuck acknowledges the bounds to be westward as far as half way to Sechonesset town, the place where the Indians now inhabit, and reaching across over the sea and taking in a part of Nope Island where the plantation now is.”
